

Are you pregnant and receiving prenatal care at Mass General?

Participate in a new research study on child brain development!

Researchers at Massachusetts General Hospital are seeking pregnant women, ages 18 and up, receiving prenatal care at MGH and affiliated community clinics, to participate in a research study of your baby's brain development.

The study involves completing a series of surveys at up to 5 timepoints during and soon after pregnancy.

Participants can earn up to $100 for participation.
